TWENTY-SECOND ANNUAL REPORT 1975-76

INTRODUCTION

During the year under review, the Institute made considerable progress, particularly in the fields of training and research. The air of uncertainty caused due to the resignation of Prof. Ishwar Dayal as Director of the Institute and a prolonged search for a suitable successor ended when Shri R.N. Haldipur took over as Director with effect from the 1st September, 1975. The Institute is now in a position to venture into new areas and plan its activities on a long-term basis. Its activities are now not merely confined to the headquarters but cover several other States, since many State Governments and public sector undertakings have approached the Institute to undertake training courses and research studies for them.

During the year some fundamental constitutional changes were also effected such as the creation of an Academic Committee to assist the Executive Council in academic matters.

This year the Institute undertook 26 research studies on various facets of administration and on contemporary problems. International agencies such as the United Nations' Asian Development Institute, Bangkok, and the Asian Centre for Development Administration, Kuala Lumpur, entrusted it with some studies which have been completed to their satisfaction. Studies on the 'Problems of Pensioners' and a survey of 'Slum & Squatters Colonies in Kanpur City' tackle subjects of vital importance. The study on 'Food Management' aims at examining the network of relations that exists between several organizations concerned with procurement. A study is on hand to suggest a micro-level action plan to reverse the trend toward social stagnation and the disorganization of economic activities in an economically backward area and to initiate development through government, community and individual efforts. Another study recently launched is on the subject of 'Creating a Culture of Organizational Sensitivity in Central Government departments'. By studying the reactions of a cross section of employees in Government departments, it aims to develop means to sensitize civil servants so that they may give improved service to the public.

The year under review marks the beginning of several new training programmes. Twenty-three courses were conducted under the Executive Development Programme and 16 courses were conducted under the Management Development Programme. The Centre for Urban Studies organized eight courses. The first Advanced Professional Programme in Public Administration was launched on the 1st September, 1975 for the middle management level in Government with participants drawn from both the Central and State Governments/Union Territories. The programme is unique in that it is the only one of its kind in India and other developing countries designed for middle level civil servants. Its accent is on applied administration combining the findings of social science research with the practical experience of administration.

The Institute also organized training programme in areas such as Tribal Development Administration, District Planning, Policy Formulation and Implementation, Project Management Techniques, Network Techniques and Performance Budgeting for Public Sector Undertakings, New Dimensions in the Management of Human Resources and Urban Plan Administration.

The Institute will be breaking new ground in the field of training when it will in collaboration with the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific and the Asian Centre for Development Administration, Kuala Lumpur, launch a Regional Programme on 'Management of Agriculture' from the 6th September to the 24th September, 1976, for countries which come under ESCAP. Preparations are under way for this International Programme which aims at analysing the multiplicity of factors involved in increasing agricultural production and exploring alternative management systems and techniques for getting agriculture moving.

Though not much headway has been made in the field of consultancy, negotiations are underway with a number of organizations. During the year under review, the Institute completed two consulting assignments and presently it has on hand four assignments and a few more which are being negotiated.

The Institute's publications are getting recognition from readers all over the country and abroad. The Indian Journal of Public Administration is now considered to be one of the most leading journals on the subject of Public Administration. This is also evident from the fact that some foreign publishers have shown interest in printing the back issues of the Journal. Our volumes on Case Studies enjoy great popularity amongst administrators and scholars.

The Institute has been attempting to build a culture which is an amalgam of both educational activity and applied research. In order to achieve this, it has organized itself into areas of specialization so that it may be able to identify fields of study in the governmental system and public sector undertakings in their interface with the Government. To the extent it succeeds in these efforts, it would be fulfilling the objectives for which it has been set up.

A.4. MEMBERSHIP

The Chairman of the Institute, Dr. Jagjivan Ram, Union Minister for Agriculture and Irrigation, requested the State Governors and the Chief Ministers to lend their support to the activities of the Institute at its Regional Branches. The response has been favourable.

The Institute also requested the Chairmen/Honorary Secretaries of all the Branches to make suggestions regarding the strengthening of the Branches and to activate their functioning.

A meeting of the Chairmen/Honorary Secretaries of Regional/Local Branches was also held on October 26, 1975, to consider the ways in which the Institute could (i) strengthen and help the Branches already established and set up new Branches in the States/Cities where the State authorities desire; (ii) plan and co-ordinate the Branch activities and obtain active participation of members; and (iii) establish professional chairs through private or other endowments with the help of the Branches. In this connection, it may be recalled that a mention was made in the Annual Report for 1974-75 about the report of a committee which was constituted to consider the question of activating the Regional/Local Branches.

The following suggestions are the highlight of this meeting:

- (i) The activities of the Branches may be coordinated and planned with a view to obtaining the active participation of the members;
- (ii) branches may conduct meetings and seminars on subjects of current interest and have libraries of their own for the benefit of the members;
- (iii) the resources may be augmented by seeking cooperation and assistance of the allied and sister-institutions located in the regions and the State Governments;
- (iv) talks/discussions by eminent persons may be arranged;
- (v) frequent meetings of the office-bearers of the branches may be organized, so as to review the activities and plan the programme of work at centrally located places;
- (vi) annual statement of accounts and the annual reports of the Branches may be sent in time to the headquarters;
- (vii) the Branches may help the headquarters to establish professorial chairs through private or other endowments;
- (viii) the possibility of opening new branches may be explored;
- (ix) a closer relationship between the Regional and Local Branches and between Branches and headquarters would be desirable;
- (x) colloquium and discussions in the theory and practice of public administration could be held in conjunction with Government Ministries/Departments and universities.

The financial assistance amounting to Rs. 60,347.76 was paid to the Regional/Local Branches during the year for carrying out their activities. This amount also included 50 per cent share of subscription of the members of the Branches.

Seminars/Conferences

A. SEMINARS

1. Seminar on 'Development Plans and their Implementation (May 2-4, 1975)

The objective of the seminar was to focus attention on the salient aspects of urban planning in order to ensure speedy and successful implementation of the plans.

The seminar was organized around the following core issues:

1. goals for urban planning (to identify the major objectives which were sought to be achieved through the planning process);
2. programme evaluation (to translate the plan into programmes and projects, to undertake feasibility studies in respect of alternative programmes and projects to be actually undertaken on the ground);
3. organization for plan implementation: to identify the major bottlenecks in administrative organization and to suggest organizational changes in order to enhance managerial competence;
4. legal issues in plan implementation: to identify legal bottlenecks that often stand in the way of successful plan implementation;
5. budgeting for plan implementation: to ensure resources planning in support of the plan activities and to install a controlling mechanism to relate the activities to allocated funds and ultimately to make room for feedback and corrective action in course of actual ground level implementation.

The seminar was inaugurated by Shri K. Raghu Ramaiah, Union Minister for Works & Housing and Parliamentary Affairs. The seminar was attended by Secretaries for Urban Affairs from a number of State Governments, Chief Planners and Directors of Town Planning, experts from various institutions, representatives of planning and development authorities and senior experts and administrators from the Government of India. Prof. Deva Raj coordinated the seminar.

A pre-seminar workshop was organised on May 2, 1975 to discuss the working paper. Thirty participants joined the deliberations held under the chairmanship of Shri R. Gopalaswamy, Joint Secretary, Ministry of Works & Housing, Government of India. A series of discussions on the goals and strategies for urban planning and development were held in the opening session on May 3, 1975 presided over by Shri T.N. Chaturvedi. The participants were divided into three working groups to discuss the following subjects:

1. Programming, Planning, Coordination and Monitoring;

Basic information regarding the operation of urban utilities in India is scanty and has not attracted enough attention of researchers or policy makers. The main purpose of the seminar was to remedy this lacuna. A number of thought provoking papers on particular aspects which might be explored through academic research and reconsideration of public policy were distributed to the participants in the seminar.

The themes identified for discussion in the seminar were tentative and new themes could be added. The main concern was not to differentiate particular problems around specific types of urban utilities, but to search for certain common issues concerning urban utilities in general.

The seminar was coordinated by Prof. A. Datta.

3. Seminar on Social Indicators for Urban Development (March 26-27, 1976)

The seminar was concerned with: (a) the general problem of

The scope of the seminar included the following major items :

General : concept of social development—information system—indicator characteristics.

Socio Economic : Social change—frustration and tension—crime and public order—social communications—public participation.

D. ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Thanks to the unstinted support and encouragement given by Shri Jagjivan Ram, Chairman of the Institute, Shri B. Sivaraman, Member, Planning Commission, Dr. B. Venkatappiah, Chairman of the Standing Committee and the interest shown by Dr. Ajit Mozoomdar, Secretary, Expenditure, Ministry of Finance, the financial position of the Institute has considerably improved. The Ministry of Finance has shown a lot of understanding and evinced interest in the present and future plans of the Institute. We are also beholden to the Ministry of Works & Housing for giving a grant for the Institute's Centre for Urban Studies. The Centre now enjoys a permanent status and will be getting recurring grants for its various activities.

We are particularly thankful to the Department of Personnel and Administrative Reforms, Cabinet Secretariat, for their continuous support in our training programmes especially the Advanced Programme in Public Administration. They have always been helpful and have extended their cooperation for our activities whenever we approached them. We are particularly grateful to Shri B.D. Pande, Cabinet Secretary, and Shri R.K. Trivedi, Secretary, Department of Personnel & Administrative Reforms, who have always shown keen interest in the activities of the Institute and lent a helping hand to solve many of our problems.

Our thanks are due to the Department of Social Welfare and the National Building Organization for placing funds for undertaking research projects. We are thankful to the Ford Foundation for giving us generous grants which contributed a lot to the strengthening our training, research and consultancy activities.

We have always found the Indian Council for Social Science Research willing to assist us in funding our research projects for which we are deeply indebted to them.

Our thanks are also due to Bharat Heavy Electricals Ltd., especially its Chairman, Shri V. Krishnamurthy, who enabled us to undertake training programmes for their officers. Negotiations are being conducted with them for further such programmes.

We are particularly thankful to our members for their cooperation and support. The increase in membership is indicative of the members' growing interest in the activities of the Institute. Steps have been taken to reactivate the regional/local branches. Activities of Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, Rajasthan and Tamil Nadu Regional Branches are worthy of mention.

We are also deeply indebted to the Ministries of External Affairs and Education which responded very favourably to our proposal with regard to forging links with East European countries, thereby encouraging and developing the bilateral contacts and exchanges between the departments of universities and our Institute for higher learning and research. In this connection, we had the full support and assistance of Shri Krishan Chand, Lt. Governor of Delhi. This has resulted in the inclusion of the name of the Institute in cultural pacts with some of the East European countries.

We greatly appreciate the contribution made by our faculty members particularly Prof. V. Jagannadham who functioned as Interim Director after Prof. Ishwar Dayal's departure. The members of the faculty having been formed into areas of specialization for better intra and inter academic interaction, the quality of training and research programmes will be further enhanced as this will provide opportunities for sharing thoughts and experience with other members. The administrative staff has always borne the brunt of heavy work cheerfully; but for their very hard labour, the Institute would not have been able to perform its various activities effectively and efficiently.
